

GREAT BRITAIN PLACES THE WHOLE NORTH SEA WITHIN MILITARY AREA

PREMIER ASQUITH MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT OF ENGLISH INTENTION TO EXTEND WARFARE UPON OCEAN.

SEVERE CANNONADING

German Persistence Continues Along Entire Line in Flanders and France Where Allies Maintain Strong Front.

Storms and floods, the enormous loss of life and the strain of incessant fighting apparently have taxed to the limit of human endurance the opposing forces which are facing each other in the death struggle in Belgium and northern France. Another lull has come in the great battle which presumably is only the prelude to some more desperate efforts.

Today's reports from the front indicate that assaults by infantry and cavalry have been abandoned for the moment, except of minor engagements, and that only the artillery is continuing operations with vigor undiminished.

Meanwhile the fighting continues on many other fields. The Russian invasion of Turkish territory from the Caucasus has been halted. The great campaign of the Russians against the Austro-German armies proceeds with varying fortune in different localities with chief interest now centering on the new German offensive movement against the Russian center.

Accounts of the fighting in Belgium, official and otherwise, dwell upon the frightful hardships which the men in the water-soaked trenches are called upon to endure.

One report comes from a British correspondent who estimates the German casualties in Belgium the last few days at 100,000.

If similar reports from the east are to be credited, the slaughter in that territory is no less terrific. A letter written by a Galician priest describes a grave more than four miles long. In it, says the letter, 40,000 Austrians, the dead from one day's fighting, were buried.

The most that is being accomplished in the west by this sort of warfare, the latest British communication indicates, is that the allies have been able to hold their line in the main here and there with small retirement before the German assault.

The French official communication of the day, after emphasizing the violent character of the cannonading now in progress, states that the fighting in Belgium and along the Aisne where German attacks are made. These, it is said, were repulsed. The fighting along the eastern boundary, however, was of a different character. There is nothing there to correspond with the endless line of trenches which stretch across France. Movement of troops are more mobile and the main battle is shifting constantly. In France an advance of a few yards is worthy of mention. In Galicia and Russian Poland they measure movements by scores of miles.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, Nov. 17.—Premier Asquith today in the House of Commons said that the British government had decided to declare the whole of the North Sea to be in the military area. All subject of the enemy on neutral vessels, the prime minister said, will be liable to detention as prisoners of war.
Mr. Asquith also announced that Germany's remarkable persistent offensive in blizzard-swept Flanders, the west, and stability after the heavy defense along her eastern frontier, were issues, the outcome of which still was undecided today in the great European war.

In Flanders the allies' line refuses to yield, while in the east the Russians continue to push forward. The battle line in France seems for the time being forgotten and the actions here, probably will continue to be of a sporadic nature until the allies in Flanders prove conclusively that they cannot be battered in or until the Germans by some mighty effort prove that they can.

Germans Still Persist.
A month of futile fighting, entailing losses, the extent of which perhaps never will be fully known, has not convinced German leaders that the French coast towns are unattainable and while snow and rain and cold have dulled the ardor of the few days so tried the troops remarkably to reduce their fighting incapacity, there is nothing to show that the invaders will not try again.

How valiantly the Germans have been meeting death is recounted by the British army's official witness at the front, Col. Swinton, who, describing the recent fighting around Ypres, said:
"Their dogged perseverance claims our wholehearted admiration."
This tribute was not qualified as heretofore by the query whether discipline or sheer bravery prompted the men so to die, for the troops referred to were the guard corps, the pick of the German army, which has, according to Col. Swinton, shown contempt for death, which it showed in the Franco-Prussian war.

Cracow in Flames.
Reports that Cracow was in flames after a Russian onslaught; that the populace of both east Prussia and Silesia was fleeing and that the Servians had been driven farther into their own country by Austrians, figure in the dispatches received in London today from the east and though what really happened at Cracow is not known here, the trend of the news would seem to indicate that the Germans and Austrians are for the moment at the bottom.

Austrian's Statement.
Washington, Nov. 17.—The Austrian ambassador, Baron Count von Tschirsky, who returned today from the summer embassy at Manchester, Mass., declared he had received from Vienna which contradicted statement that an economic depression exists in the dual monarchy.

Prices of foodstuffs, Mr. Dumba said, while high, were due not so much to the war as to the general world condition previous to the interruption of trade. The harvest, he said, was sufficient to provide for until the next crops are ready, without being supplemented by imports.

Resume Cannonading.
Paris, Nov. 17.—There was given out in Paris this afternoon the following official communication:
"From Neuport to Dixmude and in the region of Ypres, the cannonading has been resumed with greater violence than in the preceding days. On the canal to the south of Dixmude the action of our artillery checked the work that the Germans were endeavoring to carry out, to keep down the water level of the canal, which was connected to 'evacuate' a portion of their trenches, which had been filled by the waters."

Two attacks of German infantry, one to the south of Dixmude, and the other to the south of Ypres, resulted in failure. On our side we have made progress between Dixmude and the canal."

Between Armentieres and La Bassée there has been an artillery duel connected with great spirit."

In the Aisne certain German detachments which endeavored to cross the river in the vicinity of Valloir were either driven back or destroyed. "On our positions on the right bank of the Aisne, in stream from Valloir there has been violent cannonading. This applies also to the Rheims region, and several shells have fallen in the city of Rheims."

The enemy's attacks have not been an infantry engagement. We blew up with mines a certain number of German trenches. On the heights of the Meuse to the south of Verdun, we have made advances at several points. In the region of St. Mihiel we have taken possession of the first houses of the villages of Chauvau court, these houses served as barracks for the St. Mihiel garrison. This village of Chauvau court is the only point of support still held by the Germans on the left bank of the river. Meuse in this locality.

"On the right of the front, there has been nothing of importance to report."

German Strength Ebb.
Paris, Nov. 17.—The Germans in the opinion of officers at the front are beginning to show signs of the terrific strain they have undergone for the last month in Flanders and these officers expect that General Joffre's plans of holding the line and permitting the German host to wear itself out in vain, but costly assaults will soon bear fruit.

A staff officer writing from the battle line even goes so far as to predict that within another month the allies will be in a position to drive the enemy from French soil. The writer, however, admits that he is by nature an optimist.

Exterminate 3,000 Germans.
London, Nov. 17.—The following story of the annihilation of 3,000 Germans comes from a wounded soldier from the Ypres front.
"The fighting at Ypres was terrible. For forty hours we fought foot to foot, employing every resource of infantry and artillery. They recoiled, but reformed and returned. This time they reached the hundred yard mark and again recoiled and reformed."

With only a third of their original strength they advanced again. Our officers ordered us to hold our fire and let them advance. At 20 yards the order came to 'let them have it.' We did, and the German regiment ceased to exist."

"In less than an hour 3,000 men had been exterminated."

Keep Account of Damage.
St. Die, Nov. 17.—The French government is taking careful count of the damage done by German invaders to French property and of alleged offenses on the part of the enemy, deemed to be in contravention of the Hague treaty defining the rules of war. Various members of the cabinet including Premier Viviani, M. Briand, M. Millerand, minister of war, and M. Ribot, minister of finance, have visited towns and villages in the territories evacuated by the Germans and have made first hand inquiries along these lines.

President's Office.
Care, Gariel Hausa, a former cabinet officer, and Deputy Maurice Barres have done the same, and they are all convinced an enormous amount of property has been destroyed for the obliteration of which served no military purpose.

40,000 in One Grave.
Amsterdam via London, Nov. 17.—The Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant quotes a letter from a Galician priest stating that 40,000 Austrians have been buried in one day in a grave six and a half feet wide, and a little more than four miles long. The bodies, the letter says, were laid next to each other in three layers. These men were killed, it was stated, in a battle that lasted only a few hours.

Berlin Report.
Berlin, wireless, Nov. 17.—Whether the latest German victories in the east have stopped the Russian advance cannot be foretold, but German military officials say that they undoubtedly have resulted in giving the Germans an excellent strategic position, at the same time increasing the difficulties of the enemy's situation.

It is said the German authorities say that the victory must not be overestimated, and people should wait until it is known whether the Russians have been made to retreat or even brought to a standstill. The Russian officials say that they are doubtful as to whether the Russian army reported to exceed a whole army corps, but the German officials say that it is not to be forgotten that the Russians are operating in great force.

Making Small Arms.
Petrograd, Nov. 17.—The huge factory in Russia of the Singer Sewing Machine Company has been taken over by the government and will be devoted to the manufacture of small arms, while spinning concerns now operated by Americans are to be used to make steel bullets for military purposes.

Russia has lacked arms factories, and has depended upon France for her small arms as well as artillery, but today practically nothing is being received from France and the supplies became so short in Russia that some munition loading munitions as well as cannon of this same type have been used in the Polish campaign.

CITY OF MILWAUKEE IS ORDERED TO PAY $145,000 TO STATE

Supreme Court Decides State May Recover on Fines Collected in Criminal Cases.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—In a Milwaukee case the supreme court today decided the state of Wisconsin is entitled to recover $145,000 from the city of Milwaukee on account of fines in criminal cases collected in Milwaukee courts from 1898 to 1908 inclusive.

The supreme court affirmed the decision of the lower court in all of the following cases:
City is Not Liable.
No. 70.—Clarence Bernstein, plaintiff and appellant, vs. City of Milwaukee, defendant. Whether the city of Milwaukee can be held liable for injuries to a child who was hurt while playing on the public playgrounds, was the issue of dispute in this case.

Clarence Bernstein was injured while playing on the apparatus intended for children older than Clarence. In the lower court the city of Milwaukee won and the guardians of Bernstein have appealed.

Chief Order Valid.
No. 80.—Charles Kasik, plaintiff and appellant, vs. John T. Janssen and Joseph G. Kelly, defendant and respondent. The point at issue was whether the Milwaukee police had made an order that the uniforms to be worn by the policemen should be purchased of Joseph G. Kelly, Charles Kasik, another tailor, obtained a restraining order from a court commissioner restraining the enforcement of the order. Kasik claimed that the order made by Chief Janssen was invalid and he had been made in pursuance to a conspiracy between the two defendants to maintain a monopoly. The lower court dissolved the injunctions and Kasik appealed.

Decision for Doctor.
No. 92.—Timothy Mahagan, executor, plaintiff and respondent vs. Dr. Charles A. Faber, defendant and appellant. While attempting to dodge a third person, whom he injured, Dr. Charles A. Faber of Milwaukee struck Mahagan's father, injuring him, causing his death. The point at issue was whether Dr. Faber was held for damages in excess of $2,000 and appealed.

Neacy Wins Case.
No. 98.—Conrad K. Reichert, plaintiff and appellant vs. T. J. Neacy, Robert N. McMynn and Norman L. Baker, defendant and respondents. The Milwaukee county decided to relocate the house of correction and selected a certain piece of land. Neacy opposed this decision and his wife and other Reichert, who sold the land, brought this action to recover damages sustained by reason of the attempt to prevent the consummation of the relocation of the house of correction. The lower court granted a judgment for the defendants and an application for a new trial was refused. From this decision Reichert appealed.

Milwaukee Loses Another.
No. 102.—J. C. Charles Voigt, plaintiff and respondent vs. City of Milwaukee, defendant. The lower court granted a judgment for the city of Milwaukee in the amount of $1,000. The city appealed claiming that the large new viaduct in Milwaukee connecting Grand avenue in the city of Milwaukee with Grand avenue extended in the town of Wauwatosa, had been built by the city of Milwaukee and that the city of Milwaukee was liable for damages. In the lower court he was granted a judgment of $5,668, of which the city of Milwaukee paid $1,000. The city appealed claiming that the judgment is invalid.

The premier told the house that the largest portion of the first $500,000 had already been expended in the conduct of military operations, loans to the allies and disbursement for food supplies for the country.

The premier told the house that the largest portion of the first $500,000 had already been expended in the conduct of military operations, loans to the allies and disbursement for food supplies for the country.

Woman Labor Laws Violated in State.
State Industrial Commission Finds Women Employers Are Working Long Hours.
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—That the Wisconsin industrial commission does not propose to permit violation of the law limiting hours of labor for women employees, is evidenced by records filed with the attorney general today. The city of Superior is the most recent field in which the state authorities have called employers in to court and convinced them that the law must be obeyed. Hopkins Bros., proprietors of a restaurant at Superior, have just paid a $50 penalty for requiring female employees to work in excess of the hours permitted by law. The action was started on six counts, the maximum penalty being $500 at a rate of $100 per day for each count. The defendants, however, offered to confess judgment for the minimum penalty, which was agreed to by the industrial commission and the attorney general. The judge of the Superior court in Superior thereupon fixed the minimum penalty of $50, which was paid. So far the action has followed in all cases of first offense for violations of this law when the accused has offered to confess judgment without trial.

Another action by the state names J. A. McDonald, proprietor of the Dairy Lunch at Superior as defendant on six counts involving a maximum forfeiture of $500 or minimum of $50. This case is now pending and is expected to come up for settlement at an early date. Last week the state brought a Madison delicatessen dealer into court and he was penalized $10 for requiring a woman clerk to work longer than the legal hours.

MEXICAN CHIEFTAINS NEAR A COMPROMISE

Leaders of Constitutional Army Prepare to Settle Differences Washington Hears.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, Nov. 17.—Desertion among leaders of the constitutional army which threatened a renewal of civil strife in Mexico, appeared today to have been checked. While details of the progress made by the military chieftains in their attempts at a compromise, were lacking, yet administration officials thought it unlikely that both Carranza and Villa would retire.

Carranza to Retire.
Secretary Bryan announced today receipt of a message from American Consul Sullivan of Mexico City, saying that the newspapers there published a text of a telegram from General Gutierrez approving the conditions set by General Carranza for his own retirement. The United States will hold the several million dollars in customs collected at Vera Cruz until a stable government is established in Mexico.

To Hold Customs Money.
President Wilson said today that the money would be delivered to neither faction in Mexico under present conditions, and indicated that only a government recognized by the United States would receive the money. He felt that responsibility for which factions yet control Vera Cruz after its evacuation by American troops, does not rest with the United States.

AMERICAN BUSINESS RAPIDLY RECOVERS

Administration Officials Announce Heavy Demand for Goods on Part of Warring Nations.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, Nov. 17.—Officials of the various government departments which kept track of the country's business activities, feel confident that the most serious effect of European war on American business has passed. The restoration of the credit balance with Europe has greatly eased the situation, the increasing demand from Europe for American food supplies, and also the development of an abnormal trade in articles needed by the armies now in the field adding to that end.

Huge Supplies Orders.
No accurate figure on the contracts of the latter character are obtainable, but orders for horses, mules, army clothing, harnesses, and the like have flooded factories and stock men in some districts. It is said that including ammunition orders this business reached a huge total of more than $200,000,000. In several lines factories are straining to their highest capacity to meet the demands.

Other factors which have aided in clearing up the situation are the opening of the federal bank system upon which business experts look as the backbone of the country's resources. The opening of the Panama Canal which has already increased freight traffic to the west coast of South America and the entry of foreign ships into American ports under the emergency law registry under the emergency law passed at the last session of congress.

Scarcity of Carriers.
On the shipping situation officials said today there was a growing scarcity of carriers for American sea-port commerce, because the bulk of that traffic was increasing so steadily. Freight rates have risen remarkably and companies were now selecting their cargoes with greatest care avoiding all articles of even a semi contraband nature.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 17.—Things are again peaceful at the high school today after yesterday's strike of students, who demanded that Prof. F. M. PRESIDENT WILSON DECLINES TO FORCE OVERTURE TO PEACE

Takes Attitude That One of Belligerents Must Assume the Initiative.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Washington, Nov. 17.—Efforts by the United States to bring peace to Europe still are awaiting the time when one or more of the belligerents indicates a willingness to accept mediation.

Holland Urges Move.
Sentiment Gains in Dutch Republic That "Psychological Moment for Intervention is at Hand."

This became known authoritatively today from persons who have lately discussed the European situation with President Wilson. The president's position is that the United States, having already shown its readiness to act as an intermediary, should not assail the initiative of the belligerents. He feels that the Americans government, by pressing for peace might get in a position where its ultimate influence to that end would be impaired.

There has been much discussion among neutral countries such as Holland and Spain as to the desirability of concerted action. The American government will, for the present, refrain from taking the initiative toward joint action with other neutral nations.

Holland Urges Intervention.
Amsterdam, Nov. 17.—The Handelsblat tonight prints an editorial headed, "Is Intervention Possible?" in which it urges the co-operation of the queen of the Netherlands and President Woodrow Wilson of the United States in using this "psychological" moment to offer mediation by these two neutral nations.

"Since three and a half months the people of Europe and Asia have been drawn into a war of which the original issues now have been forgotten," the editorial says, "the ideal results are impossible. The war is fast degenerating into a purposeless conflict calling upon all the worst passions of all the nations."

Innocent Persons Suffer.
"Winter is approaching and the misery everywhere is increasing. The number of dead on the battlefield is being increased by numbers of innocent people who are suffering from starvation. Has not the moment come to say what can be saved?"

"Two countries are plainly indicated as the ones which should make the first attempt—the kingdom of the Netherlands and the republic of the United States—their geographical situation and universal appreciation of sentiments and principles. Its much honored president can offer his services without arousing suspicion on the part of any of the warring nations."

Argue a Demurrer in Hull vs. Doheny.
Attorneys for Defendants in Case Alleging Fraud in Land Deal Present Arguments to Court.

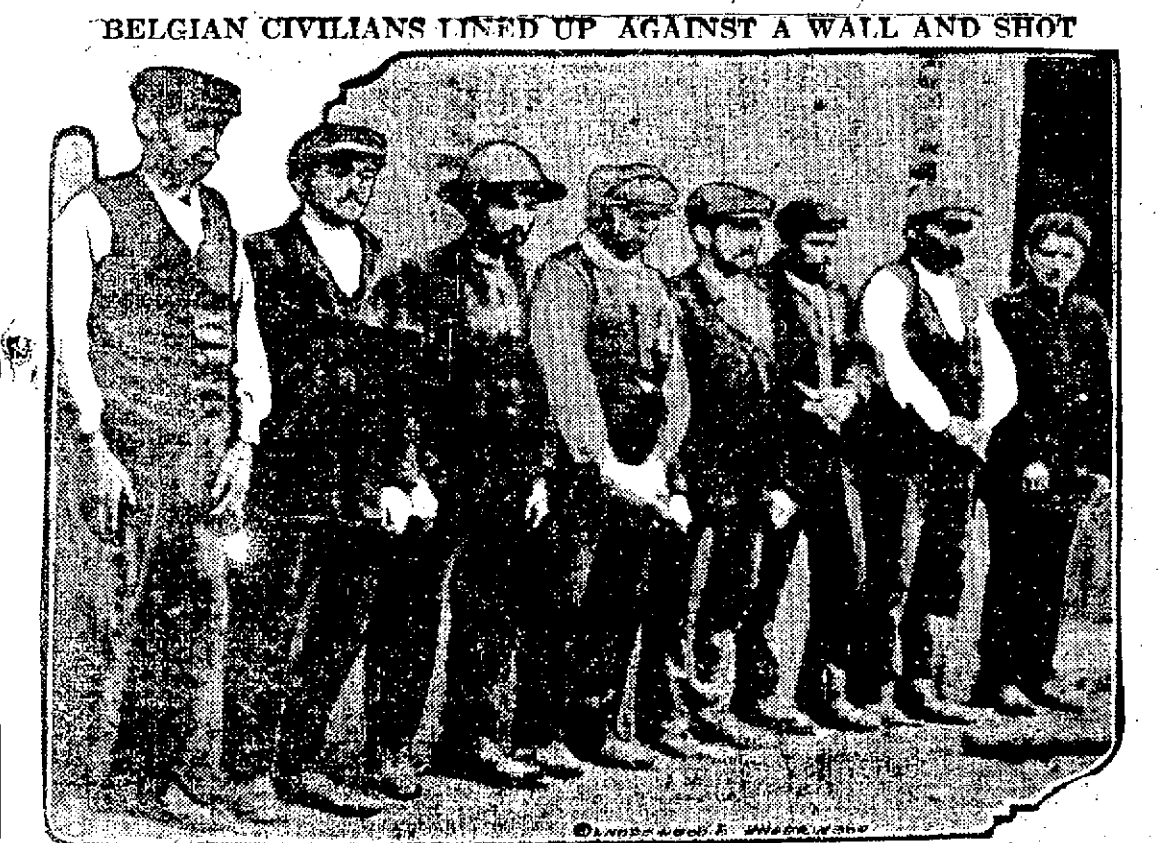

Attorneys in the case of S. C. Hull vs. Ethel Doheny, Jr., and others, argued a demurrer this afternoon before Judge Grimm in the circuit court chamber, the jury being excluded. An extended argument on points of law made through the court, representing Doheny, which was answered by Thomas S. Nolan for the plaintiff. The case is brought by Hull, who resides at Milton Junction, to recover some $11,000 or $12,000 out of which he alleges he was defrauded in a land deal.

Testimony was taken Monday afternoon in the case of Myrtle A. Conway against David W. Conway, both of Janesville, to arrive at the amount of property owned by the defendant, so that a basis of settlement and division of the same might be affected following a decree of divorce. Conway, himself, was called upon to testify.

This is the season when the newspaper advertising of merchant and manufacturer bubbles over with good news.
If you want to spend some really interesting moments run your eye over the advertising in The Gazette.
Every line of it is the message of an optimist.

These eight Belgian peasants were seized by the Germans in southern Belgium, tried by summary court martial on a charge of giving information against the Germans, lined up against a wall and shot. A few minutes after the photo was taken the men were shown were only a heap of bloody, quivering lifeless flesh.

THE ELECTION LESSON.

Losic's Weekly sees a lesson taught by the recent election in the following pointed paragraphs:
"That a political ingrate has few supporters and less friends.
"That the first gun for returning prosperity has been fired.
"That capital will once more begin to seek investment.
"That the people prefer prosperity to partisanship, and the statesman to the demagogue.
"That business men have discovered that they have a real interest in politics.
"That the era of trust busting and railroad smashing is approaching its end.
"That the protective tariff still has many ardent friends in American workshops.
"That the labor vote is not controlled by Sam Gompers, but is as independent as any other vote.
"That the workmen of Pennsylvania, New York, Connecticut, Ohio, New Jersey and all the other great industrial states, know who fills the dinner pail and the pay envelope and who keeps them full.
"That the people are not eager to pay an income tax and also a hundred millions in war taxes in time of peace.
"That the people are opposed to a congress that sat longer and spent more money than any other congress ever assembled in this country.
"That the policy of watchful waiting in Mexico, costing $10,000,000 and seventeen precious lives, is not enthusiastically approved in view of the fact that its tremendous cost could have been avoided if this country had followed the example promptly of other first-class powers and recognized the Huerta government.
"That President Wilson's absolute domination of congress has ended. Defeated members will not feel in the mood to take further orders.
"That the Interstate Commerce Commission will concede fair treatment to the railroads or be retired from public service.
"That President Wilson will not be re-nominated, but that his party will turn to a conservative statesman of the Underwood type.
"That if Charles S. Whitman makes as good a governor of New York state as he has made a district attorney of New York county, he will be the republican candidate from New York for president in 1916 with a united party behind him.
"That the thinking people rule! Onward Christian Soldiers!"

AN ADVENTURE IN PSYCHOLOGY.

"Some considerable time ago the people of one of the greatest nations of the earth were instructed, by one of their foremost authorities, that the sensation of vacancy in their personal interiors was merely psychological. Having, fundamentally, a considerable respect for their rulers and governors, they concealed a smile, and proceeded to do the best they could, where what they optimistically call their representatives would let them," says the Wall Street Journal.
"But since the election there is a change, which might fairly be called psychological if the word had not been dragged down to the level of the comic papers. Certainly there is tangible improvement also. The exchange situation is clearing, and without a free exchange market international banking is virtually impossible. Without such a market call money is not really available. But it can be obtained now, and could probably be obtained more freely if well-meaning people in Washington would leave the freest market in the world to regulate itself. The loaning rate can no more be modified by legislation, ordinance, or treasury rule, than the law of gravitation.
"Exports are improving also. But the most important consideration, for the moment at least, is the change in representation in congress, whereby the nominal majority becomes impotent for well-meaning but ill-advised measures to regulate what it does not begin to understand. Bankers are feeling this. Before the election they were scared of any proposition to re-open the Stock Exchange. Now they welcome suggestions, and give them practical consideration. Before the election they were inclined to shut down, lest a worse thing might befall them. Now they want to open up and face fate bravely.

"This is the kind of psychology America can understand. As a people we are not accustomed to taking even the blows of fate lying down. As Kipling says, we are prepared 'to match with Destiny for bers.' Speculation is inherent in the American spirit, and has never achieved the dignified place in human consideration it deserves. It is part of the creative instinct in man.

"Here is some real psychology with a practical bearing upon wider employment and a return to normal conditions of industry."

THE REST ROOM.

Definite action is being taken towards the establishment of a municipal rest room in the city at some convenient place for the accommodation of citizens and visitors to the city. It is a much-needed improvement and the present city administration is working in hearty accord with the Commercial club and the members of the Civic League towards its establishment. The suggestion of the erection of a suitable building on the Corn Exchange square, one story high, with a flat roof that might be utilized for band concerts, a place for public speakers to stand, and other purposes, meets with general approval, but legal difficulties arise which may prevent its erection. If, however, the general public becomes sufficiently aroused in favor of such an establishment, this could be overcome without a doubt. Meanwhile actual steps are being taken in the right direction and we may expect results.

THE BELGIAN FUND.

The fund for the relief of the suffering Belgians is growing slowly and will be forwarded as soon as possible to the proper authorities where it will be put to the use it is intended for. American foodstuffs will be purchased and shipped to the suffering little land now devastated by war, where it is urgently needed. The list are still at the four banks in the city, at the Baker drug store and the Gazette office and the public is urged to subscribe as liberally as they feel able to a worthy cause.

THE HOME HELPERS' BUREAU.

The Gazette believes that through co-operation, the success of the Home Helpers' Bureau can be made of value to the workers and those wishing work done. With this in view it will publish the list of those registered in anish column at various times so that the busy housewife may readily find where she can obtain help in her household duties when desired. It is a co-operative organization and should receive the support of citizens generally.

This European war is a mecca for press agents. The conflicting reports sent out by the press bureaus of the various warring nations are earning their salaries far better than their American brothers who must depend upon fake jewelry robberies to exploit their art.

Federal reserve banks may tend to restore a measure of confidence in business, but strange to say the landlord will still want his rent as usual and the coal, the ice, the groceries and the meat must be purchased whether the head of the house is working or not.

There is still Asia and Australia for Colonel Roosevelt to discover. He need not give up yet nor sigh like Alexander for more worlds to conquer when these great countries are just aching for him to pay them a visit.

The man who tries to explain to his wife why he comes home late for meals is often suffering from the far-famed hoof and mouth disease. Every time he opens his mouth he puts his foot in it.

Bryan still believes that the people endorsed his policies, as promulgated by Waiting. Watchful Woodrow when the democrats managed to keep control of the two houses of congress by a narrow margin.

Next time General Villa makes a man president of Mexico he should keep him tied to his saddlehorn at least until he can see the government safely started.

In the war zone bread is made according to the government recipe. After an encounter or two with amateur biscuits perhaps war is not so bad after all.

His Time Had Come.

Again that ringing in his ears! It was the warning he had dreaded. He knew his time had come. Yet, although he had started at the sound, he seemed half-dazed and wholly careless of the consequences. But still the ringing in his ears! "Drat it!" he finally said, and springing from bed the careworn commuter shut off the alarm clock and proceeded to dress for the 7:10 train.—Puck.

Surer.
It is to be regretted that the man who counts on his fingers is not apt to be so disappointed as the man who counts on his friends.

OUR National Opportunity LESSONS for AMERICA from the WAR

WE ARE RUNNING A WORLD'S DEPARTMENT STORE.

By George H. Benedict.
We continue to export grain to Europe up to the limit of facilities for transportation. The early demand for wheat keeps up unabated, and we are greatly strengthened when Turkey entered the war. Oats and corn are now coming in for more attention, and are selling at increased prices.

As for sales of general supplies to Europe, encouraging reports are coming in daily. To quote some of them: A call for 5,700 pounds of hard came to an East St. Louis packing house from the British government. The Kaiser's government has been offering high prices for hard in the same neighborhood.

A Cleveland knitting mill has an order for 150,000 gray cotton and wool sweaters for the armies of one of the warring powers; name not given. The Russian government has announced in New York that it is about to call for about 80,000 fulminating caps to be used in connection with floating mines. It is stated that orders for 7,000 lathes has been passed out by an agent acting for the same government, among American machine tool makers.

The French government has ordered 500,000 yards of cotton duck from Wellington, Sears & Co. of Boston and the same concern has in hand orders for a million yards for the British army.

One of the interesting phases of the war has been the variety of the goods ordered from us in such enormous quantities by warring powers. We are being called upon to supply everything from cannons to surgeons' gowns, from foodstuffs and clothing to aeroplanes and barbed wire.

We are running a world's department store, and trade is booming!

OHIO'S GOVERNOR-ELECT, BORN IN HUMBLE FARM HOME, HAS WHITE HOUSE FOR GOAL

Frank Willis and his birthplace near Lewis Center, Delaware county, O.

"The second McKinley," as his friends call him, Frank B. Willis, congressman and governor-elect of Ohio, is a product of the farm. While he was not self-educated in the sense that Lincoln was, Willis toiled hard to pay his way through school and college. Already he is being groomed as an important element in the Republican party as the G. O. P. nominee for president in 1916.

Mildew stains. Mildew stains are sometimes a source of great trouble, and are difficult to remove unless you know just the right way. Rub a little soap over the mildew spots, and on top of this a little chalk and lemon juice. If the garment is then put out in the sun for a couple of hours and afterwards washed in the usual way the spots will disappear.

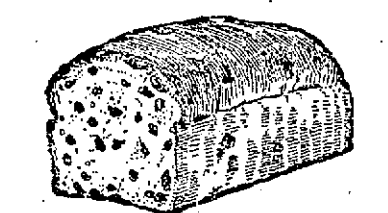

Eyesight of the Indian. American Indians claim that they can see at least one-tenth farther than the average white man.

WANT 50 DELEGATES FROM THIS CITY TO GO TO CONFERENCE

Y. M. C. A. Anxious to Make Record
Showing at Older Boys' Convention at Fond Du Lac, Nov.
27-29th.

Especially anxious that Janesville and Rock County Y. M. C. A. make a record showing in attendance at the 12th annual Wisconsin older boys' conference, to be held in Fond du Lac, November 27-29th. Associate Secretary R. C. Blackie, of the local association, is devising means and methods whereby at least fifty possible delegates can be secured to go to the convention. With County Secretary L. A. Markham, already promising for ten to possibly fifteen delegates from the city districts, with each church in the city working toward this end, and with Mr. MacKenzie looking up members who belong to no church, possibilities for the county being well represented at the meetings are beginning to look exceedingly bright.

Several representatives and leaders from the various churches in the city and county have been communicated with and some interviewed, and the plan is generally met with favor. The conference is to be conducted this year under the joint auspices of the state and Wisconsin Sunday School Association. An invitation is extended to older boys and men, to leaders representing churches, to Sunday schools, to Y. M. C. A. boys, to high school young people's societies, brotherhoods, clubs, boy scouts and high and preparatory school students.

The conference was held at Wausau last November, when 412 delegates registered. Hopes this fall that at least 500 and still better, 600, might be present. For the past few years, the interest in this particular conference has been wide and has extended to every corner of the state. Janesville have not been represented in past conferences, and to start right off the reel with a big group of delegates would be a big help to the Janesville Y. M. C. A. county Y. M. C. A., and to the city as well. Beloit, it is hoped will join in with Janesville and push the movement.

Such speakers as E. E. Roberts, Right Reverend R. H. Waller, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Fond du Lac; C. C. Robinson, boys' department secretary, E. J. Abrahamson, athletic director at Lawrence college; Rev. E. J. Nickel, Bethel Evangelical church of Milwaukee, are billed to appear on the program.

Men's sweaters coats and flannel top shirts keep out cold and can be bought cheap at J. H. Burns & Son, 22 South River.

Mr. and Mrs. Amil Fromholz are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby daughter, born on Saturday, Nov. 14.

Atavism in Dogs.

Dogs, probably the earliest of domesticated animals, when transferred to a tropical country, such as central Africa, lose in a few generations most of the characteristics they have acquired in Europe, and revert more and more to the type of the jackal and the wolf. Then their ears, whatever their breed, tend to become pointed, their coats turn sandy or rufous and their bark becomes a howl. Some attempt has been made to show that this is the result of disease and resembles the effect of malaria on the human constitution. Yet the Egyptian god of Pharaonic times possessed, as is seen by the monuments, these very characteristics; and as he was certainly domesticated before the European animal, it is probable that these are original features of the race.

The season for women's heavy coats is going to be short and as we are afraid we have overstocked we are making special prices on perfection garments at our new store, 22 South River street. J. H. Burns & Son.

Athena Class: The Athena Class will meet in library hall at 2:30 on Wednesday afternoon. Lesson 13 will form the work of the session.

DEAF MUTE HAPPIEST MAN IN JANESVILLE

Contributions From City Officials and Police Make Strange Deaf
Mute Happy.

Police men, city officials and people at the city hall this morning felt immensely better for a bit of charity administered in a deaf mute, who fell into the hands of the police officers. Helping others in dire need put warmth in the hearts of every man who heard the story traced out on a crumbly traced alphabet by the mute. Early in the morning the police received a call that an insane man was begging for five cents on Milwaukee street. Officer William Gower found a shabbily dressed, grizzled bearded man in front of the Foss cab man, blinding incoherently and eating a piece of bread. He was brought to the station. Chief of Police Champion and several others attempted to learn his identity, but the man could neither speak nor hear a sound. Nor could he write. Attempts to communicate with printed words were in vain. The man tried to tell the officers his name by spelling, but his efforts were meaningless. He could not give the address. So poorly educated was the man in writing he was forced to spell out simple words in the dumb language with his hands, and then attempt to write them. He even consulted his deaf and dumb dictionary to learn the letters to express his thoughts.

The police were at sea to know what to do with him. Chief of Police Champion ordered him taken to the cell room until he could find a deaf mute to converse with him.

As officer Gower unlocked the "bull pen" doors that could not be sighted at the row of cells, he brought every person in the city hall to their feet by the most pitiful and wailing cry imaginable. It made shivers creep up and down one's back. The loud cry of the "bull pen" on hearing the first outburst, ducked quickly to the farthest corner of the cell room, fearing that a rabidly insane man was to be let loose in the corridor. For fully two minutes the mute sobbed his wail, that could be plainly heard on Milwaukee street.

Needless to say, every person in the city hall hurried to the basement, and finally the man was quieted. Mayor Pathers took the alphabet card and finally succeeded in conversing with the man. It was learned his name was Charles Bodoin and his wife and two children live in Racine. By hand expressions Bodoin indicated that he had come to Janesville to seek work on a farm, to provide bread for his wife and two children, one of whom was an infant. He had, he said, injured, possibly by a corn shredder, as three of his fingers were mangled and in urgent need of medical attention.

When the group of men learned of the straits the man was in, and that he had only a quarter to his name, a generous contribution was forthcoming. When the money was placed in Bodoin's pocketbook, there was an expression of joy, mingled with tears that brought a surplus of a tear even into the eyes of the stern officers. Between tears and laughter and joyful expressions, the man indicated that his family could be happy if he could get back to his home. Every few minutes he would gleefully exhibit his new found wealth and then burst into tears.

He was taken to the eleven o'clock train by Policeman Harry Smith, and en route to the station there was not a happier man in the world than Charles Bodoin. The train could not come too soon.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

CRUEL KINDNESS.
"THE greatest harm in a business way that was ever done me," a man told me the other day, "was by a man who thinks he is my benefactor. He gave, as he thought, a lot of loose, vague ultra-optimistic information about a business I thought of entering. I took that as a basis, planned accordingly, and lost a year of my life and I don't like to think how much money."

RUTH CAMERON

I imagine that few of us have had as bitter an experience as that. But equally few have not had some painful experience as the result of mistaken optimism and vague information furnished by people who fancy they do us a kindness thereby, or who, at least, have no idea of the harm they are doing.

Every day there comes into the big cities of this country hundreds of young men and women who have no idea of the actual conditions they will have to face. They have heard tales of big money and quick success in one line or another; their little talent or ability has been lavishly praised by well-meaning friends who do not stop to think of the empty ambitions they are inflating to bursting point. Finally some cruelly thoughtful person has said, "You ought to go to New York. The train has been set, the match has been applied, the explosion occurred. They throw off the shackles of a little town life and go."

They may succeed brilliantly and they may fail tragically. Or much more likely they may do neither but just mull along on the dead line of mediocrity. But whatever they do, there will come many a bitter hour when they will regret the will-o'-the-wisp promise and applaud that led them into that wretched morass.

And while we are on this subject, I should just like to know how many would be authors have been teased along into wasting infinite time and hope by the delectable magazine rejection slips of the various magazines. There is no practice a studied letting-down-easy, as kind on the surface as it is cruel underneath.

For instance, one magazine rejects your contributions only "because of the necessity of giving precedence to other contributions." Another graciously finds it "not quite suited to our needs," while numerous editors hasten to assure you that the rejection of a manuscript "does not necessarily imply lack of merit."

However, we can at least be thankful that we do not live in China, for this is how the Chinese editor concludes his lavish praise of the manuscript he is about to reject:

"With fear and trembling we return the manuscript. Did we dare to publish it the President would issue a decree ordering us to take your jewel as a model and never dare to publish anything inferior to it."

"Our long experience in journalism teaches us that such pearls can be produced only once in a thousand years. That is why we must return it. We crave your forgiveness. Behold, we are at your feet."

meat as finely as possible. Into each incision pour a few drops of fruit juice spread a pasta made with the yolk of one egg, a little sugar, a dash of pepper, prepared mustard and bread crumbs. Put in the oven until thoroughly browned.

Caramel or Canned Sweet Potatoes.—Select two or three large sweet potatoes and boil them until a fork can be stuck into them with ease. Remove from water and peel. It may be necessary to cut potatoes on a fork to be able to handle, for few objects in the world are hotter than a hot sweet potato. Slice in lengthwise slices, lay in baking dish and dot with butter. Heat heating cup brown sugar in cup of water and boil to a sirup. Pour sirup over sliced potatoes in baking dish, sprinkle top layer with sugar and bits of butter. Set in oven and bake for an hour. When done there should be a thick sirup in bottom of baking dish and a candied brown crust over the top slices. The addition of small bits of dried orange peel lends a flavor which many like. Or a stick of cinnamon may be laid in the bottom of dish.

Another old and tried way of making candied potatoes is as follows: Nine sweet potatoes, two cups cold water, one-half lemon sliced thin, three-fourths pound beef fat. Peel and cut up potatoes and put them in kettle or large saucepan with the fat, sugar, water and lemon; have heat very slow and cook from two and one-half to three hours, when the sirup should be quite thick and the potatoes browned and soft.

Steamed Hickory Pudding.—One-half cup melted butter creamed with one-half cup sugar, two eggs beaten separately, one cup milk, two cups flour, one-half teaspoon one aniseed, one-half cup raisins, two hours in buttered mold. Sauce: One cup powdered sugar, one tablespoon butter, yolks of two eggs, all creamed together. When ready to serve add one-half pint whipped cream.

THE TABLE.
Molasses Cake in Crust.—One cup New Orleans molasses, one cup thick milk, almost a cup of sugar, shortening size of an egg, one teaspoon soda, three cups flour. Bake with under crust made as ordinary pie crust.

Snow Pyramid.—Whip one pint good rich cream until firm, chill in ice box. Serve in small glasses. Beat the whites or four eggs (or if small use about six), sweeten, and gradually stir in a cup of any kind of good fruit jelly. When you are ready to serve, drop a spoonful of the egg in the center of each dish of cream in shape of pyramid. This is fine when one is entertaining.

EVERYDAY TALKS TO EVERYDAY PEOPLE

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

A man there was who in his youth was given chance and training to make of himself what God intended.

He was a lovable little chap, with a heavy mass of dark brown hair, a pair of big, wondering eyes that looked as if they had been set in by soiled fingers, so dark they were around their edges.

As the years sped swiftly on he excelled in school and athletics, and on leaving school at the age of sixteen put in four years learning the machinist's trade. At twenty he was trained to draw a good salary, stood six feet and was slim as a rail; slim with that lean, lanky slenderness that seems some men's chief charm—if men may lay claim to charms.

Earning good wages he spent freely, was popular and the nights that he was out with the boys were as many as the ones he spent at home. Through all his goings he was still the boy and man that you like to think your boy is going to be.

At twenty-four he turned a corner of his life and met a girl to whom he gave, without reserve, the love of his clean, young heart; gave it all, for his was the nature that was not half-measures. A happy year sped by on golden wings; their wedding day was named, the preparations were in progress when a cold, developing into pneumonia, caused the young man to silently drift out upon uncharted seas.

Then, Jim, at twenty-five, strong, handsome, powerful, just on the threshold of life, holding a good position with a bright future, started to drink. He went after liquor and he went after everything else and in a short time had resigned his position and left his native city.

Followed four years of wandering and high-life. The cup of sorrow was not the only cup that Jim drained to its dregs.

When all his tomorrows stretched out drearily like dead yesterday, he again turned a corner in his life, meeting a woman who living in the west with her mother and two little children, was earning her living as a bookkeeper in one of the large factories. One snowy night he saved her from certain injury at a crowded crossing and saw her safely home. There was liquor in his system at the time, but the woman did not know it. Thereafter he called often at her home and again the sunshine of a good woman's love spread its glory around Jim's life.

He slacked up on his drinking, leaving it entirely alone the nights he called on her—until he returned to his boarding house. Then he "hit" the bottle, for habit is a stern master and Jim had drank steadily for four years. After six months' abstinence, during which time he had tried to brace up, he met two men, on a Sunday afternoon, who hailed from his own home town. The particular city, like many others, was down on Sunday, on the surface, but Jim had no knock and by nightfall he was plainly under the influence of liquor.

He entered the woman's home and before she was aware of his intentions he had taken her in his arms and told her of his love. The heavy-lidded, wondering eyes had lost their power. They were liquor-fogged and blood-shot and their condition smote the woman like a blow. When he left her home he returned to a saloon and for two straight weeks gave himself up to his old companion, liquor, without reserve. Weak people do not select their weaknesses though they must endure their consequences, so Jim—big-hearted, ardent Jim—when the woman married the man she had loved, for Kent growing down dim alleys, in the land that might have been.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Susan, I wish you would let me have $150 for tile," said Mr. Baxter. "If I could drain that wet pasture, I could raise a big crop of corn next year. I have been wanting to do it for a long time."

"I have no money except what is out on good first mortgage security, and I don't care to call it in," said Mrs. Baxter, a bride of a month. "It took all the ready money I had to fix this house up so I could live in it. You and the boys had things in bad shape."

"But don't you see, Susan, that the crop on that field would bring more than six per cent? The whole farm needs a lot of money spent on it to bring it up where it should be," and Mr. Baxter passed his cup for more coffee.

"Look here, Lyman," said the wife, holding the coffee pot poised in the air, "I have $5,000 that I have got together by the hardest kind of work. I am getting $300 a year, interest on it. That is what I used to get my wedding clothes and furnish this house. I shall have no more money for six months, and a good part of that is spoken for, as I am helping James' boy through college, so you see I shall have no money to spend on the farm for a year," and she poured the coffee and handed it to her husband.

"Women don't know anything about business. That field would be good security. I'll give you six per cent for the money, and Mr. Baxter rose in his chair and speared a slice of bread.

"Lyman, for goodness sake, ask to have things passed! You men have lived here alone until your manners are something awful," exclaimed Mrs. Baxter in an irritated voice. "Never mind my table manners. The thing that's biting me is to find a way to drain that field. Will you lend me the money, since you haven't enough interest in me and your home to give it to me?" and Mr. Baxter poured his coffee into his saucer to cool.

"No; once and for all, I will neither lend nor give you a cent. If the field is such good security, borrow it at the bank. The thing is as broad as it is long. You managed to live before I married you and you can keep it up; if not, you—"

But Mr. Baxter had risen from the table, kicked his chair back with a heavy boot, caught up his hat from the floor and banged out of the house.

This was the beginning of trouble. The father and two boys, sixteen and nineteen, entered on a consistent course of persecution. Every means to obtain possession of the wife's money was adopted, from pleading to violence. One day, after a particularly distressing scene, the men left the house and Mrs. Baxter, seizing paper and pen, wrote to her brother, living fifteen miles distant, begging him to come and take her and her furniture away. She named a particular day the following week when Mr. Baxter would be absent from home as the most propitious time. When the day came she carefully packed all her possessions and watched with increasing nervousness for her brother.

The boys were at work in the barn when the brother and father rattled into the yard, but came out to see who had arrived. Without ceremony the newcomers began loading the furniture. The boys determined to prevent this, and when the men emerged from the kitchen door they shouted:

"Drop that furniture! Not a thing goes from this house!" These commands were seconded by angry brandishing of clubs. The father was seventy-five years old, but wiry as a youth, and it did not take him long to disarm one of the boys. The brother managed the other, shouting, "Now take to the timber."

The cupboard full of well-cooked food was all that remained for Mr. Baxter when he returned. His venture into matrimony as a financial enterprise had turned out less well than he had hoped.

FOLEY'S MONEY AND TAR COMPOUND FOR CROUP.

Croup scares you. The loud hoarse croupy cough, choking and gasping breath, labored breathing, call for immediate relief. The very first doses of Foley's Money and Tar Compound will master the croup. It cuts the thick mucus, clears away the phlegm and opens up and eases the air passages. Harold Berg, Mass. Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to marry a girl to whom I am devotedly attached. My mother strongly opposes the marriage because the girl has almost no education—so my mother says—that is, she never went farther than the eighth grade, while I am a college senior. She objects to the family, too. But I tell her the girl is better than her family and I am not marrying her family. My mother has done everything for me, educated me, and we have been great chums. I can't bear to do anything to hurt her, but I love this girl. What should I do?

BACHELOR.
 You surely could not have asked a harder question. Before I answer it let me ask you some questions. Will this girl be able to enter into your life intellectually as your mother has done? Education does not mean the number of pages covered in books or even the diplomas from educational institutions. I have seen people who have had almost no advantages who were well educated, well read, keen to grasp the point of anything, able to adapt themselves to circumstances. That is the test. Will she meet it? If so, your mother is sticking to forms only. Second, do not deceive yourself with the false hope of not marrying the girl's relatives. You do in a great degree. You cannot help yourself and if you cannot be at ease with them or like them, think twice before you mix yourself up with them for life. I have simply indicated some things that must be thought of. Now it is up to you to decide the thing yourself. Neither your mother nor anyone else can select your wife for you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My son has married a helpless, dependent girl and brought her home to me. She has a child, but most of the care of it falls on me, as she is not willing to exert herself. If my son were to go away from me and have a home of his own I know he would have the most of the work to do after he had done his day's work at the shop. It is not right for her to leave everything for me to do. I try to be patient with her, as she is only a girl, not old enough to be a mother really and I could be patient if she would try to learn. What would you advise me to do?

GRANDMA.
 Dear madam, the young people will learn their lessons much faster if left to themselves. I think you are accustomed to doing the work of your home and she not knowing much about housework dreads to make her efforts before you. If she is to learn she must be thrown on her own resources. If that does not teach her nothing will. At any rate it is a problem for them to work out alone if it can ever be solved. Is it not possible for them to go to house-keeping by themselves? The husband must talk to his wife about his helping her so much and he can do it, if she loves him, much better than his mother can. You have brought up one family. It is not fair to expect you to take care of theirs.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please let me know what will take paint off from glass? (2) Will kerosene remove dandruff and not harm the hair?

A CONSTANT READER.
 (1) Coal oil or turpentine are good, or if you soak in strong vinegar and salt and scrape you can remove it. (2) Kerosene will not harm the hair, in fact is very good for it and will remove dandruff, but the smell is so offensive that I would rub vaseline well into the roots of the hair. The effect is the same, but vaseline is not so disagreeable.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Well you please tell me what the difference is between a divorce and separate maintenance? A divorce annuls a marriage in the courts and leaves the parties free to remarry if they choose. Separate maintenance is not an annulment of the marriage vows; neither could remarry. They live apart and the husband supports the wife.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My son has married a helpless, dependent girl and brought her home to me. She has a child, but most of the care of it falls on me, as she is not willing to exert herself. If my son were to go away from me and have a home of his own I know he would have the most of the work to do after he had done his day's work at the shop. It is not right for her to leave everything for me to do. I try to be patient with her, as she is only a girl, not old enough to be a mother really and I could be patient if she would try to learn. What would you advise me to do?

And yet, such is the inconsistency of the human animal, the instinct for self-preservation was stronger than her purpose; when a touring car swung round the mountain and shot toward her, she checked herself hastily and jumped aside in ample time to escape being run down.

The next instant the machine was lurching to a halt and the sonorous accents of Seneca Trine were saluting her:

"Judith! You here! What the devil! Where've you been? Where are Marrophi and Jimmy?"

Digging the nails of her fingers painfully into her palms, she breathed deep, fighting down hysteria, reasserting her self-control in so short a space of time that her father failed to appreciate that there was anything uncommon in the mind of the girl.

"Where?" he demanded angrily as she approached the car, "where, I want to know, are Marrophi and Jimmy? Haven't you seen or heard anything of them? They left me at six o'clock this morning, to go after—"

"Dead!" the girl interrupted, sententious, eyeing him strangely.

"I don't believe it!" the old man screamed, aghast. "I won't believe it. You're lying to me, you jade! You're lying!"

"I am not," she broke in coldly. "I am telling you the plain truth. They followed us all morning in that red racer, firing at us all the while. Finally they caught up with us here, about noon—came up this road shooting over the windshield. It was our lives or theirs. We turned the hydraulic stream on them and washed the car over the cliff. If you don't believe me, get somebody to show you their faces."

She indicated with a gesture two forms that lay at a little distance back from the roadside, motionless beneath a sheet of canvas—the bodies of Trine's creatures, recovered by the mining gang and brought up for a Christian burial.

But Trine required no more confirmation of Judith's word. The light flickered and died in his evil old eyes; his stricken countenance assumed a hue of pallor even more intense than was normal with it; a broken curse issued from his trembling, thin, old lips; and his chin sagged to his chest, heavy-weighted with despair that followed realization of the fact that he no longer owned even one friend or creature upon whose conscienceless loyalty he might depend.

The last bitter drop that brimmed his cup of misery was added when Alan Law himself appeared, leaving the miners' cabin in company with his betrothed—Rose now soothed and comforted, smiling through the traces of her recent tears as she clung to her lover, nestling in the hollow of his arm.

To Alan, on the other hand, this rencontre seemed to afford nothing but the pleasant surprise imaginable.

"Well!" he cried, releasing Rose and running down to the car. "Here's luck! And at the very moment when I was calling my lucky star hard names! How can I ever reward your thoughtfulness, Mr. Trine? It beats me how you do keep track of me this way—happening along like this every time I need a car the worst way in the world!"

"Drive on," Trine screamed to the chauffeur. "Drive on, do you hear?"

But Judith had stepped up on the running board and was eyeing the driver coldly, with one hand significantly resting on the butt of the weapon at her side. The car remained at a standstill.

Sulphurous profanity followed, a pungent stream of vituperation that was checked only by Judith's interruption: "We've had to gag you once before, you know. If you want another taste of that—keep on!"

"But where's Barcus?" Judith demanded when, after helping Rose into the car and running off to thank their hosts, Alan returned alone to the car.

"Goodness only knows," the young man answered cheerfully. "He would insist on rambling off down the canyon in search of an alleged town where we could hire a motor car—somewhere down there. I tried to make him understand that we had plenty of time, but he was mulish as he generally is when he gets a foolish notion into his head. So I daresay he'll meet him on his way back—or else asleep somewhere by the roadside."

Taking the seat next to the chauffeur, he gave the word to drive on; and they slipped away from the location of the mining camp, saluted by cheers from the miners.

The road dipped sharply down the mountainside to the bed of the canyon. The car moved smoothly and swiftly, coasting: only now and then was it necessary to call upon the engine for power with which to negotiate an upgrade or some uncommonly long stretch of level road.

Half an hour passed without a word spoken by any member of the party. Each was deep in his or her own special preoccupation: Alan turning over plans for an early wedding; Rose hugging the contentment regained through her lover's protestations; Judith lost in profoundest melancholy; Trine nursing his rage, working himself up into a silent fury whose consequences were to be more far-reaching than even he dreamed in his wildest moments.

Its first development, for all that, was desperate enough.

The aged monomaniac occupied the right-hand corner of the rear seat. Thus his one able hand was next to Judith, in close juxtaposition to the revolver in the holster on her hip.

Without the least warning his left hand closed upon the weapon, withdrew it and leveled it at the back of Alan's head.

As he pulled the trigger Judith flung herself bodily upon the arm.

Even so, the bullet found a goal, though in another than the intended victim. The muscular forearm of the chauffeur received it.

With a shriek of pain the man released the wheel and grasped his arm.

Before Alan could move to prevent the disaster the car, running without a guiding hand, careened off a low embankment to the left and shot full tilt into a shallow ditch on the right, shelling its passengers like peas from a broken pod.

Alan catapulted a good twenty feet through the air and alighted with such force that he lay stunned for several moments.

When he came to, he found Barcus helping him to his feet; a heavy seven-passenger touring car halted in the roadway indicated the manner in which his friend had arrived on the scene of the accident.

When damages were assessed it was found that none of the party had suffered seriously but the chauffeur and Seneca Trine himself. The former had only his wound to show however, while Trine lay still and senseless at a very considerable distance from the wrecked automobile.

Nothing but a barely perceptible respiration and intermittently fluttering pulse persuaded them that the flame of life was not extinct in that poor, old, pain-racked body.

CHAPTER LIII.

The Last Trump.

Toward the evening of the third day following the motor spill, Judith sat in the deeply recessed window of a bedroom on the second floor of a hotel situated in the heart of California's orange-growing lands.

Behind her Seneca Trine sat, apparently asleep, in a wheeled invalid chair.

There was no occupant of the room. Though he had lain nearly two days in coma, her father's subsequent progress toward recovery of his normal state had been rapid. Now, according to a council of surgeons and physicians who had been summoned to deliberate on his case, he was in a fair way to round out the average span of a sound man's lifetime.

He had apparently suffered nothing in consequence of his accident more serious than prolonged unconsciousness. For the last twenty-four hours he had been in full possession of his faculties and (for some reason impossible to Judith toathom) uncommonly cheerful.

From this circumstance she drew a certain sense of mystified anxiety. Twice in the course of the morning she had caught his eye following her with a gleam of sardonic exultancy, as though he nursed some secret of extraordinary potentialities.

And yet (she argued) it was quite impossible that he should have some fresh scheme brewing for the assassination of Alan. Not a soul had had any sort of communication with him since his recovery but the attending surgeon, a man of unimpeachable character, a meek-mannered trained nurse, and herself, Judith. Under such circumstances he simply could not have set a new conspiracy afoot.

And yet. . . . She was oppressed by a great uneasiness.

Perhaps (she reasoned) the weather was responsible for this feeling, in some measure at least. The day had been unconsciously hot, a day without a breath of air. Now, as it drew toward its close, its heat seemed to become more and more oppressive even as its light was darkened by a portentous phenomenon—a vast pall of inky cloud shouldering up over the mountains to the music of distant rumblings.

Nor was this all; a considerable degree of restlessness was surely pardonable in one who, from her window, watched a carriage-drive populous with vehicles (for the most part motor cars) bringing to the hotel gayly dressed men and women, the guests invited to the wedding of Rose Trine and Alan Law.

Within another ten minutes the man Judith loved with all her body and soul would be the husband of her sister.

She had told herself she was resigned; but she was not, and she would never be. Her heart was breaking in her bosom as she sat there, watching, waiting, listening to the ever heavier detonations of the approaching thunderstorm and to the jubilant pealing of a great organ down below.

The had told herself that, though resigned, she could not bear to witness the ceremony. Now as the moment drew near when the marriage

"GETS-IT," 2 Drops, Corn Vanishes!

The Only Sure Ender of All Corns.

Desperate, are you, over trying to get rid of corns? Quit using old formulas under new names, bandages, winding, tapes and corns diggers that make a fat little package out of your toe. Quit punishing your feet by using toe-eating salves and ointments.

To use knives, files, scissors and razors, slicing and hacking at a corn, only make it grow faster and bigger. It also brings danger of bleeding and blood poison. The new way, the one principle never known before in corn-history, is "GETS-IT." It's a liquid—2 drops on a corn does the work. Pain goes, the corn begins to shrivel and out it comes! You apply it in two seconds. Nothing to stir, nothing to hurt, and it never fails.

would be a thing finished, fixed, irrevocable, she found herself unable to endure the strain alone.

Slowly, against her will, she rose and stole across the floor to her father's chair.

His breathing was slow and regular; beyond doubt he slept; unquestionably there was no reason why she should not leave him for ten minutes; even though he waked it could not harm him to await her return at the end of that scant period.

Like a guilty thing, on feet as noiseless as any sneak thief's, she crept from the room, closed the door silently, ran down the hall and descended by a back way, a little-used staircase, to the lower hall, approaching the scene of the marriage.

Constructed in imitation of an old Spanish mission chapel, it contained one of the finest organs in the world; at this close range its deep-throated tones vied with the warnings of the storm. Judith, lurking in a passage-way whose open door revealed the altar steps and chancel, was shaken to the very marrow of her being by the majestic reverberations of the music.

Since they had regained contact with civilization in a section of the country where the Law estate had vast holdings of land, the chapel was thronged with men and women who had known Alan's father and wished to honor his son.

Above stairs, in the room Judith had quitted, Seneca Trine opened both eyes wide and laughed a silent laugh of savage triumph when the door closed behind his daughter.

At last he was left to his own devices—and at a time the most fitting imaginable for what he had in mind.

With a grin, Seneca Trine raised both arms and stretched them wide apart.

Don't Merely "Stop" a Cough

Stop the Thing that Causes It and the Cough will Stop Itself

A cough is really one of our best friends. It warns us that there is inflammation or obstruction in a dangerous place. Therefore, when you get a bad cough don't proceed to dose yourself with a lot of drugs that merely "stop" the cough temporarily by deadening the inflamed membrane. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make an obstinate cough vanish more quickly than you ever thought possible.

Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you a full pint of the most pleasant and effective cough remedy you ever used, at a cost of only 54 cents. No bother to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

It heals the inflamed membrane so gently and promptly that you wonder how it does it. Also loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, rich in quaiacol, and is famous the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Dinner Stories

A Chicago business man has had a great deal of trouble with his workmen, a number of whom have from time to time evinced a disposition to "Soldier." On one occasion when this gentleman, in company with his brother, was visiting the farm of a friend in southern Illinois, the two observed an uncouth figure standing in a distant field. "Since it isn't moving," observed the brother, "it must be a scarecrow."

"That isn't a scarecrow," said the Chicago man, after a long gaze at the figure. "That's a man working by the day."

A well-known aviator was not feeling very well, so he thought he would consult a physician, to whom he was a stranger. He told the doctor his symptoms. The doctor examined him carefully and said: "My dear sir, you are all right. What you want is plenty of fresh air."

An interested visitor who was making the final call in the tenement district rising said: "Well, my good woman, I must go now. Is there anything I can do for you?" "No, thank you, mem," replied the submerged one. "Ye mustn't mind it if I don't return the call, will ye? I haven't any time to go slummin' meself."

Everyone of us casts a shadow. There hangs above us a sort of penumbra—a strange, indefinable something—which we call the personal influence, which has its effect on every other life on which it falls. It goes with us wherever we go. It is not something we can have when we will, as we lay aside a garment. It is something that always pours out from our life like light from a lamp, like heat from a flame, like perfume from a flower.—J. R. Miller.

TAX COLLECTOR 74 YEARS OLD

Expected to Resign on Account of Feebleness—Gained Strength and Twenty-four Pounds by Taking Vinol.

Corinth, Miss.—"I am a city tax collector and seventy-four years of age. I was in a weak, run-down condition so that I became exhausted by every little exertion. My druggist told me about Vinol, and I decided to take it. In a week I noticed considerable improvement. I continued its use and now I have gained twenty pounds in weight, and feel much stronger. I consider Vinol a fine tonic to create strength for old people."—J. A. Price, Corinth, Miss.

As one grows old their organs act more slowly and less effectually than in youth, circulation is poor, the blood gets thin, the appetite poor and digestion weak. Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, is the ideal strengthener and body builder for old folks because it creates a good healthy appetite, strengthens digestion, enriches the blood, improves circulation and in this natural manner builds up, strengthens and invigorates feeble, run-down, nervous and aged people, and if it does not do all we say, we will pay back your money. Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

NOTE—You can get Vinol at the leading drug store in every town where this paper circulates.

WILL PREPARE LINEN BANDAGES ALL WEEK

Janesville Drama Society to Meet Friday Evening at Special Session to Box Up Material.

Members of the Janesville Drama Society will be found busy all week preparing bandages and other Red Cross materials to be sent probably next week to Chicago, from where they will be shipped to the Red Cross hospitals in Europe and Asia.

The club decided to hold a special session Friday evening, when all members are to bring the materials they have prepared. At this meeting a large box will be ready to receive the bandages. The suggestion of advertising for material was thrown out by the chairman of the refreshment committee for Friday night, when a light lunch will be served, during the packing of the linen.

At least a dozen presidents and chairmen of various church societies in the city have signified their intentions of putting the "old linen campaign" proposition before their various groups at the next regular sessions. It is believed that many such bodies will follow the Drama Society in their efforts to aid the injured soldiers of the warring countries.

The club decided at last night's meeting to become members of the Drama League of America. They will join this organization at once. A great benefit will undoubtedly be realized from becoming members of the national organization of this nature. The league offers at various times during the year to make propositions whereby the local society might present Disraeli or some other noted player on the stage, for the public's interest.

The problem confronting the club regarding the purchase of the back volumes of the Theatre Magazine and the binding of the books was entirely decided last night. The books will be bought by a local firm and placed on a shelf at the library for the use of the club members.

The program was short and most interesting. Miss Hazel Willey gave an article on the synopsis of the play "Diplomacy." The reading of the third and last act of "The House Next Door" closed the program. At the conclusion of the reading it was decided that the same cast of characters commit the second and third acts and act them out before the club at some future date.

New members taken into the club last evening are the Misses Hazel Weirick and Ina Tohn and Raymond Barnes.

"How came I to be a promoter?" Jimmy Coffroth considered the question a moment. "Well," he began, "it was, you might say, accidental. Thirteen years ago, I, James Coffroth, was secretary of the superior courts of San Francisco. But I happened at this time to visit New York City. Did it ever occur to you what a little thing will sometimes change a man's life? This trip changed mine. It so happened that in New York at this time the Horton law expired, practically killing the box game in the east. Jim Kennedy, the country's foremost sporting promoter, suggested that we come west together and organize a club to promote boxing. I accepted. Kennedy and I worked together until his death in 1904, and since then I have been in the game alone." And that is how James Coffroth became the world's premier sporting promoter. "In the course," continued Coffroth, "of my thirteen years in the fight game I have promoted 200 glove contests, fifty of them world's championship battles." This record is unequalled in the history of the Queensberry game.

Realizing that he has a ball team to rebuild, John McGraw has returned to his desk in the New York office of the ball club and is busily engaged getting matters in shape for next season. When the season closed McGraw took a few weeks' vacation, but he is back on the job now, and it would not be surprising if he had some things to announce shortly that will once more prove him to be a decidedly active man. When it comes to running a ball team, McGraw, however, is not apt to make as many changes in his team as was hinted when the Giants were beaten out of the pennant. He will not dispose of any of his old players until he is sure he has as good or better youngsters to take the place of his seasoned material.

Abe Attell attained more than the usual modicum of popularity when he stepped into the "33" circle to exchange facers with the heavier Jaddabucks. Likewise, he accumulated much of the stuff which is classically though maliciously known as filthy language. Attell made a small fortune, but he didn't have it when he went out. An ingrown passion for poker and miscellaneous wagering cut deeply into the Attell exchequer. So when the illustrious fellow dropped from the first rank he owned nothing to brag about.

Charles W. Somers, owner of the Naps, does not believe the Federal league will have a team in Cleveland in 1915. This in spite of the activities of M. P. Bramley and his associates, who have just secured a park site. "Peace will be declared before next season starts, and I think the peace plans will call for Cleveland having only one team, the Naps," Somers said.

Walter Camp says the wind is likely to play some strange tricks in University of Pennsylvania football players were hard hit by the scouring they received at Ann Arbor. Several have announced that they will not accept a varsity letter from the athletic association because they played in the Michigan game. They will not ask for their "P" unless Penn beats either Dartmouth or Cornell.

Ad Wolgast, Battling Nelson and Johnny Coulton made neat fortunes in the ring and still had them when the impressive kayo came over. Killbane ranks with the rest—not in wealth just yet, but in manners and inclinations. There isn't a cleaner living boxer in the game than Killbane. Nor is there any one who better realizes the value of the dollar. Also the champion has business ability. What investments he does make will be reasonably safe.

For thirty-two years the Phillies have failed in their annual fight for a National league gonfalon. In this time ten managers have come and gone. We wonder if we'll be writing the same about Pat Moran this time next season?

Jimmy Austin has joined the time-honored and Federal-Blessed order of holdouts. The third baseman and captain of the St. Louis Browns recently returned his contract to President Hedges. Jimmy stated he is satisfied with the salary offered, but balks at signing for only one year. He demanded a three-year contract, and when refused, declined to make a closing for next season. The report now is that he is negotiating with Fielder Jones of the St. Louis outlaws.

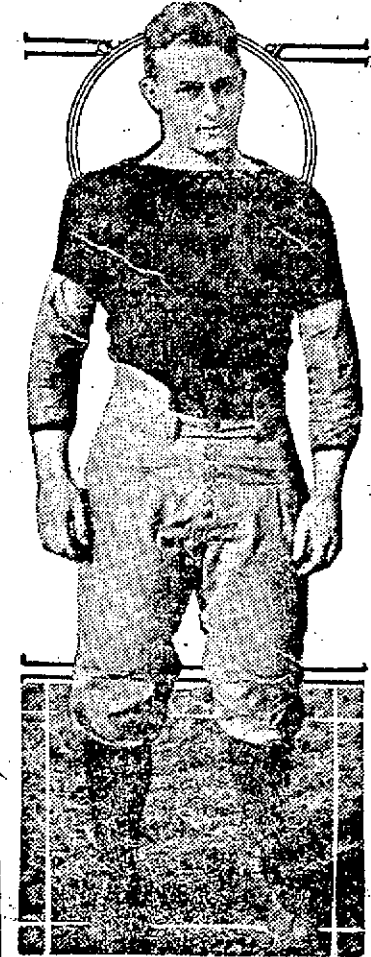

A six-club circuit is the result of the reorganization of the Triple league. Peoria, Davenport, Moline, Decatur, Bloomington and Quincy each advanced $500 in cash to secure their franchises. Springfield and Duquenois, the two other clubs in the league during the past season, failing to put up this amount and forfeited their franchises.

Jimmy Wilde of Wales, now fighting in London, is trying to emulate Ned Hunt, the 128-pound conqueror of giants who fought in England early in the eighteenth century. Wilde is so small no opponents of his weight can be found. He weighs 104 pounds and is forced to fight men weighing from 112 to 115. These he defeats with ease. Wilde is said to hit as hard as any heavyweight in England. He has boxed about 120 battles without being defeated.

Catcher Jack Adams, former Nap, who was slated for a trial with the Naps next spring, goes to the Giants in the draft. Jack played with New Orleans this year.

LEACH CROSS MEETS G. GALLANT TONIGHT.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) New York, Nov. 17.—Leach Cross, the pride of the East Side, will face Gilbert Gallant, of Boston, tonight at a local club. Gallant defeated Cross recently and the return match was scheduled to give the fighter-dentist a chance of get even.

Earth's Diameter.

What is the greatest diameter of the earth? "At the equator," is the common answer; this is not strictly true, for the actual diameter is modified by conditions on the surface. According to the eminent Professor Henkey, the greatest diameter is that taken from the summit of Mount Chimborazo, in Ecuador, 20,136 feet above sea level. The line drawn about the earth from this point emerges on the opposite side on a high point on the coast of Sumatra, giving a diameter of 7,929 miles.

AT MYERS THEATRE. When "Neptune's Daughter," with Annette Kellermann in the title role comes to Myers Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, November 23-24 for an engagement limited to 4 performances, the playgoers of this city will have an opportunity of witnessing one of the greatest motion picture plays ever projected on the screen.

It had its premier in New York at the Globe Theatre where it is still running to capacity audiences and should attain a record of three hundred performances.

Annette Kellermann, who enacts the title role, is known throughout the world as one of the greatest diving and swimming experts, has for many years been a headliner, both on the Keith and Orpheum circuits. She is also recognized among women as possessing a figure the measurement of which corresponds with Venus, of immortal fame.

"Neptune's Daughter" was filmed on the shores of Bermuda, an ideal spot for the locale of a moving picture play because of its wondrous flowers and picturesque scenery.

ings that so often arise between husband and wife, and that eventually result in a widened and unbridgeable gap, and that only too often divides the trail forever.

The production does not alone establish a common fault, but contrary to the construction of most problem plays, also indicates a remedy, and illustrates in the particular case treated in the play that generosity and tolerance, next to mother love and sacrifice, are the two greatest human traits.

The production is mounted with the utmost care, and the settings, details and suggestions of emotion and dramatic intensity are wrought with a timely and appropriate attention that further extends the interest in the central characters and those who assist in their development.

Henrietta Crossman, in "The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch," is bound to impress and thrill motion picture audiences throughout the world.

LOGAN'S RETURN CHEERS OLD ELI ROOTERS; HIS KICKING HELPS MUCH

Quarterback Logan.

The return of Logan to his place at quarterback has done much to enliven the Old Eli eleven. Logan was out of the game for some while with injuries that at first were thought to be so serious as to keep him from active play for the greatest part of the season. His speedy recovery has given impetus to the belief around New Haven that the Blue is to have a triumphant season. Logan is not only a capable and heady field general, but he is invaluable with his toe. His place kicking has been a source of strength to the team. In the above picture he is shown kicking in good earnest.

is that of Neptune, king of the sea, who with his people inhabit the depths of the ocean. At the time of the play their preserves are encroached upon by fisher folk of King William's realm. His sister, Annette, a mermaid aged six, is caught in the fisherman's net and being unable to extricate herself, dies. Annette vows to have revenge on the slayers of her sister, seeks out "The Witch of the Sea" and from her obtains a charm that will enable her to become a mortal at will. How she plans to meet the King, who she holds is responsible for her troubles, and the result of their meeting, is told in most graphic manner.

"The Wrath of the Gods." This lustily celebrated picture will be shown at the Myers theatre tonight and tomorrow night with matinee tomorrow. Among other thrills a portion of the picture is devoted to showing a volcanic eruption and the destruction of Sakura-Iina. The most celebrated Japanese artists were engaged to take part in this picture. The picture is in six parts, and a beautiful love story runs through the fabric of the entire production.

Tribune War Pictures Coming. Many Janesville people have wondered if the already famous Tribune war pictures were coming to Janesville. Manager Myers announces that they will appear for two days with matinee daily, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 18th and 19th. These famous pictures were taken right on the field of battle by Edwin F. Veigle, the Tribune staff photographer.

Lyman Howe Travel Festival. The noted travel pictures of Lyman H. Howe will be shown in Janesville at an early date, but Manager Myers does not desire the date released for the present.

"THE VIRGINIAN" WILL BE SHOWN AGAIN TONIGHT

Famous Story and Play is More Popular Than Ever in Motion Pictures.

Dustin Farnum, in the title role of "The Virginian," dramatized that well liked character to the entire satisfaction of a goodly sized house at the Apollo last night in Jesse L. Lasky's picturization of the popular novel and famous play. The photoplay, by virtue of its scenic possibilities, is a greater success than the stage production. "The Virginian" is a living fiction monument to the west that was the west we like to imagine. This beautiful photoplay in five parts will be seen for the last time tonight. No one who ever read the story should miss it.

LITTLE WAR ORPHANS FLEEING FROM ANTWERP; BRITISH NAVAL BRIGADE CARRYING AMMUNITION INTO TRENCHES NEAR CITY

AMERICAN HEIRESSSES WHO MARRIED ABROAD ALLEVIATE WAR'S MISERIES; CONVERT PALACES INTO HOSPITALS; AID RED CROSS

Many American heiresses who married abroad are now alleviating war's miseries. The Duchess of Talleyrand, formerly Anna Gould, has converted her beautiful palace in Paris into a hospital; the Duchess of Marlborough, who was Consuelo Vanderbilt, has been the moving spirit in London in organizing American assistance for British soldiers; at Munich the Countess von Bernstorff, the American wife of the German ambassador to the United States, is giving all her time to the Red Cross; while Mrs. Waldorf Astor, another expatriated American, is ministering to sick and wounded British soldiers in London.

SCIENCE NOTES

The next field artillery guns put into service by the United States government will be supplied with a split-trail carriage, which will permit the elevation of the gun to almost the vertical point, so that the gunners will be enabled to go after the airships. Projectiles are being made which will leave a trail of smoke by day and light by night, so that the gunners will quickly get the range of such airships and put them out of business.

An interesting industrial poverty is a coal mine in China operated entirely by native labor and management. The machinery is mostly from Germany, but there are several American locomotives at work hauling the coal. About 1,000 tons of good coal is produced daily. The laborers are paid 10 cents per day and board, which is equivalent to an additional 5 cents per day.

The spectroscope has proven a valuable and very quick means of analyzing the mineral waters, as shown recently by a French savant. He sends a beam of light through the water to be analyzed and thence through the spectroscopic prism, in order to permit of examining the spectrum, this method revealing very minute traces of metals. He finds the most varied metals in different samples of mineral water, and even the rarest metals, such as germanium and gallium, which are very rarely found in nature.

According to popular belief, lacquers are vegetable products that exude from various trees of India and the East when the twigs are punctured by a cochineal insect, the Coccus lacca. One kind of gum is, however, actually produced by the insect itself. The minute larvae begin to secrete the gum as soon as they puncture the tender bark and begin to suck the plant juices. In favorable circumstances the red secretion gradually envelops the larva in a hard lump, which protects it from attack.

SAFEGUARD HEALTH OF BRITISH PEOPLE

Health Officers Take Great Precautions to Prevent Admission of Diseases From War Zone.

(Correspondence of The A. P.) Folkestone, Nov. 17.—English health officers at Folkestone are taking unusual precautions to prevent the admission of diseases into England from the war zone. Passengers arriving on the Flushing, Dieppe, Boulogne and Calais boats are examined with great care. Folkestone is now practically the only commercial port open for passenger business from the continent, so the stream of refugees, tourists and wounded soldiers all passes through this port. Health officers feel the pulse of every passenger, examine the wrist carefully, look into the throat and eyes and scrutinize the foreheads of ladies whose hair is fashionably dressed. It is frequently necessary to push the hat and front hair back. This action on the part of physicians has frequently caused ladies to believe the physicians were secret service men who suspected they had messages concealed in their hair. Immigration officials and plain clothes men examine the papers of all passengers very carefully before they enter England and usually engage them in conversation in an effort to ascertain whether their French or English has a German accent. Baggage is also examined thoroughly by inspectors to make sure it contains no German newspapers or letters from Berlin for persons in England.

Because of the improper use made of American passports by Lieutenant Lord of the German Naval Reserve and other spies apprehended in England, France and Belgium, all bearers of American passports are rigorously cross-questioned.

Flushing is the only open gateway from the United States and England to Germany which affords a direct trip and most travelers to and from Germany go by the Holland route as it is much shorter than a trip by way of Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Consequently the Flushing boats would be probably selected by secret agents of the German Government.

Scattered cases of scarlet fever and smallpox have already made their appearance among Belgian refugees in Holland and Northern diseases in refugee camps, but the Belgians are living in such crowded and unsanitary conditions that it is difficult to protect them against contagion.

Eye of the Eagle.

That the eagle can look into the intense sunlight without blinking is explained by the fact that the bird has a thin transparent veil which it can draw over the eyeball when occasion requires and which tempers the light, but does not obstruct the vision.

Artistic.

"There!" said Mr. Nagg, after a labored explanation of why he had stayed out so late: "I hope this is satisfactory." "It is more than satisfactory," Mrs. Nagg told him, "it is simply beautiful."
